Float Mini embodies our commitment to creating ergonomic and sustainable products.

Although standard in most other sit/stand desks, Float Mini does not utilize any harmful Red List chemicals, such as formaldehyde. In addition, we chose to use bamboo for the work surface as opposed to traditional wood. Bamboo takes less than 10 years to replenish, making it the more planet-friendly option. By comparison, the wood used in standard tops comes from old-growth forests, which can take up to 100 years to regrow. While emulating our goal of creating net positive products that leave the world better off, the table provides a warm aesthetic perfect for any work-from-home setup without compromising durability.
